

REGIONAL DISPARITIES

Regional committee

Patients, service users and health and social services employees are still suffering from the toxic effects of the Barrette reform.

Since the creation of the integrated centre with its huge territory, employees have been moving away from small, remote facilities to work in the larger centre. This leads to breaks in services and communities being left without resources.

The APTS-FIQ alliance is demanding the creation of a regional working committee with its own budget that will look for regional solutions to local workforce problems. Among other tasks, this committee will determine which localities should receive the 8% retention premium.

Together, we can look for solutions to the problems our region is experiencing. It's just common sense!
